1. At a conference in early August 1952 at the Deutscher Normenausschuss (DNA) in which East Germany was represented by Professors H.H. Frank, (fmu) Lange, and (fmu) Henselmann, East Germany's monetary contribution to the International Standards Organization (ISO) was discussed. Germany is to pay 6,000 dollars per year. Calculated on the percentage of the total German population residing in East Germany, the East German share would amount to 2,000 dollars. Professor Lange stated that East Germany was prepared to pay as much as one-half of the total which would amount to 3,000 dollars.
2. As of 25 September, East Germany had not stated when its share would be paid.
